

Individuals in History: Bringing the Past to Life through Biography

Missouri Council for History Education State Conference

September 28 - 29, 2007

Missouri History Museum, Forest Park

St. Louis, Missouri

Telling the stories of individuals in the past makes history lively and personal. Through breakout sessions, an optional tour and featured speakers, conference participants can gather new perspectives and new strategies to use in their classrooms. Three featured speakers are made possible by a grant from the Missouri Humanities Council:

Linda Reed, University of Houston, scholar of African American history focusing on women and the Civil Rights movement

Dennis Denenberg, Millersville University, author of 50 American Heroes Every Kid Should Meet

William Tsutsui, University of Kansas, Director of the Confucius Center, expert on Japanese history

Participants will have access to resources and scholarship to support and enliven their teaching of history. Exhibits of social studies materials will also be available. Two continental breakfasts, two lunches and a late-afternoon reception are included in the registration.

Payment and registration form should be sent to:
